South Bay to buy flag pole

SOUTH BAY—Members of the city commission decided Tuesday night to personally help buy a flag pole and flags to be installed in the triangle park and help celebrate the Bicentennial.

The South Bay Bicentennial Committee requested two weeks ago that the city buy the pole but were asked to find out what the cost would be.

Committee Chairman Mary Waters said at that meeting that the pole could run as high as $1,500 but she said Tuesday night the committee had been told by Elco of West Palm Beach they could get a 30-foot all-aluminum pole for $600.

She said the city also like the city to pay $46 for an American and a Bicentennial flag.

City Commissioner Don Tanner, after Mrs. Waters reminded the committee that they had already promised to donate $400 to the committee, said he thought the city should go ahead and donate that.

He then suggested the five commissioners donate the next personally having the city deduct $25 per month from their salaries over the next two months.

Commissioner Vernita Cox moved to pay for the pole and flag. Mrs. Waters and Commissioner O'Neal Walker seconded the motion, which passed unanimously.

Mrs. Waters also showed the commission drawings made by the State Department of Transportation of the landscaping the committee plans for have done in the park.

The major improvement, besides the flag pole, a eight-foot by 100-foot stone four-in-a-pool. Mrs. Waters said she also hopes to have a number of trees and other plants donated by private residents.

In other business, the commissioners decided to hold a workshop session on recreation after hearing a resident say the reason juveniles have been making false alarms for the department is that they're bored.

The master came up when Police Chief Willie Wisper Jr. asked the commission for some direction on the false alarms. He said most of the alarms were coming from a call box he had on a utility pole near Bailey's Store on Joe Louis Avenue and suggested the possibility of removing the box.

Wisper told the commission he had received a number of complaints from area residents because they were disturbed by the fire sirens, often as late as 2 a.m.

"Most of the (legitimate) fire calls are made by people who are away," he said. "We could just take it down." He said there was little police could do because the Division of Youth Services would only remand the juveniles into the custody of their parents.

Mrs. Eva Reese said the city shouldn't remove the box because that would leave the residents without protection. She also said DYS must not be the correct agency to handle juveniles.

Wisper said the police are required by law to turn the juveniles over to DYS, and commented that the ones who were turned over had already committed a crime. He said DYS would do anything to the offenders because they hadn't committed a serious-enough crime.

Mrs. Reese said the ones who were turned over had a "concrete recreation problem."

The commissioners agreed to meet later in a workshop session on recreation.

SGT. RAY HARTLEY CONGRATULATES M.L. AND MRS. MICHAEL Sheahan as the couple prepare for their Army basic training next week

Couple takes togetherness into Army

A Belle Glade couple have become the first married couple from the Glades in some years to be inducted together into the U.S. Army.

Michael and Deborah Sheahan of South Bay, who said they've been married about 18 months, have already enlisted in the Army on a deferred recruitment program, joining up on April 1.

Sheahan will leave Monday to report for basic training in Fort Sill, Okla. and his wife will report to Fort McClellan, Ala. Following their basic training they will join each other at Fort Carson, Colo. Sheahan, a 1973 graduate of Glades Central High School, and his wife, a native of Chattanooga, Tenn., said they are enlisting for two reasons, the training

Sheahan will get as a mechanic in artillery maintenance and the Army. Must now take a course in training like what her husband will undergo than women who were recruited in the past. That's right, Hartley told Mrs. Sheahan, you'll get training on the range and you may have male drill instructors."

Sheahan, as all other women being recruited into the Army, must now take a course in training like what her husband will undergo than women who

The landscape, done in oils, represents the Glades, according to Mrs. Tyler, especially for raising money to aid the local bicentennial project with the door money. May 31, during the barbecue during the city's bicentennial festival.

Mrs. Tyler said she was donating the painting to the Belle Glade Bicentennial Committee and the piece of art was custom framed by the Art Shop in Lake Worth. The frame was also donated.

Mrs. Tom Zitter agreed to chair the drive to sell tickets for the painting, and last week began the task of distributing the 5,000 tickets for $1 each.

The proceeds from the drawing, which will be held at the barbecue on Memorial Day, will go to paying for and furnishing the Lawrence E. Will Museum which is now under construction as an addition to the Belle Glade Library.

Mrs. Zitter met with a group of volunteers she is asking to help with the sale of the tickets last Thursday.

The volunteers, most of whom represented clubs in the Belle Glade area, will be selling the tickets in a variety of places and ways around town.

Purchasing a ticket for a dollar is a way in which every person in our city can contribute not only a bicentennial project," Mrs. Zitter said. "But to a lasting source of pride in our Glades history and education facility for ourselves, our children and their children."

This project is receiving excellent support from a wide cross-section of organizations and individuals of all ages. This is the type of project however that needs a little support from everybody rather than a lot of support from a few."

Nurses to provide more care

An ambulance slides into the emergency room delivery bay with a heart attack victim. A Belle Glade Fire Department rescue squad member has already begun basic life support measures, but what are his chances now he's at the hospital?

If it's Glades General, they're better than ever. They're better because doctors aren't the only ones qualified now to take over where the Emergency Medical Technician leaves off.

The victim has a better chance because three Glades General nurses recently completed a post-graduate course in advanced cardiac life support.

And that means three more people in the emergency room qualified to take whatever action is necessary to save the victim's life.

Mrs. Bonnie Peacock, the line supervisor of nurses at Glades General, Mrs. Cindy Hartmann and Mrs. Helen Murray were the three registered nurses Glades General sent to Bal Harbour in late March to the Fourth Annual Postgraduate Seminar in Emergency Medicine.

They were wrong among approximately 1,500 physicians, registered nurses and EMT II's attending the seminar and among the group of an estimated 75 people who took the first Advanced Cardiac Life Support course offered by the American Heart Association in the state.

"The American Heart Association sets the standards for the basic cardiac life support techniques," Mrs. Peacock said. Mrs. Peacock is one of a handful of people teaching CPR, (Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation) in the Glades. She was also the instructor who taught the Belle Glade Fire Department rescue team their Emergency Medical Technician course.

To complete the seminar, the three nurses said they took a series of written examinations and eight stations of practical exams after receiving instruction on the material.

"This wasn't all that simple," Mrs. Peacock said. "We had to pass to be certified and not everybody who took the course did."

The first of the practical exams began where Mrs. Peacock's class students have off with basic life support, which includes CPR, infant resuscitation and clearing an obstructed airway.

From there it got tougher, using mechanical aids to breathing, inserting tubes down the throats of manikins without touching off sensitive alarm lights, starting intravenous fluids in several veins and arteries, using electrical shock defibrillation equipment to stabilize a fluttering heart and using other electronic equipment and drugs to help victims.

Mrs. Peacock said she, Mrs. Hartmann and Mrs. Murray were chosen by the hospital to attend the seminar because they are usually assigned to the emergency room and would be more apt to need the knowledge than other nurses in the hospital.

She said the hospital also sent another nurse, Mrs. Weller, in another area to attend the seminar but she was involved in another area.

All three nurses gave credit to the hospital for sending them and to the Florida Chapter of the American College of Emergency Physicians and the Florida Chapter of Emergency Department Nurses Association for sponsoring the seminar.

Beware, dogs

Mike Tucker, a groundskeeper at Lake Shore Junior High School, inspects the first South American poison toad reported in the Glades. Tucker said he and Samuel McKenzie were cutting grass at the school when they found the giant toad, also known as a Bufo marinus. The toads have been sighted for several months on the east coast and have been known to cause the deaths of a number of dogs.

Phone call brings man 6 charges

A single telephone call was enough Saturday morning to bring a total of six charges against a Belle Glade man.

The phone call was made to police to complain that Tenel Monson, 35, of 648 S.W. Ave. D was beating up Carolyn Michell Jackson, 25, of 709 S.W. Ave. D and a juvenile girl.

When Eberle and Lowry answered the call and spotted Monson driving past him on Southwest Avenue E, but couldn't stop him so he radioed Det. D. James Eberle, coming from the other direction, to stop him.

What would have been an aggravated assault charge went up when the officers said they found a .32 caliber revolver with a stolen property.

That, plus one other fact, added the charges of driving while intoxicated, possession

Pot Likker

by R.D. Santee

My career in public speaking is finished. Never again will I accept invitations to speak to any group when the audience is larger than three persons.

I have arrived at the decision through many hours of deliberation from my hospital bed. My hands to make those I speak to feel through their pain. I was over, sped me to become incarcerated in a medical institution nursing various and sundry injuries and ailments.

It all started when I was invited to speak at a medical convention. I sat at the rostrum and listened to speaker after speaker decry the fact that there was sickness and disease in the world. They seemed sincere in their concern over the problem, and were downright abject as they could not cure these ills.

Therefore, when it became my turn to speak, I rose and stated, "Gentlemen, I have good news. I have discovered a way to end disease and illness throughout the world starting tomorrow."

I was mobbed.

My hair was pulled, my eyes were blackened, my shins were kicked and my left arm received a hairline fracture.

I retreated from the hall with no particular, and am now utterly dishonorable my abdication may have appeared.

I nursed my wounds overnight, afraid to consult a physician, on the chance that he may have been one of my attackers and would finish the job. I had no idea that doctors were so interested in the universal cure for all ills.

The next day I was scheduled to speak at a policeman's function. Once again, the problem of crime and its prevention was the over-riding concern. The speakers literally cried when they spoke of rampant crime rates and the difficulties of checking it. And, once again, I, in order to bring hope to their defeatist attitude, rose and announced that, starting next week,

I had it on good authority that all crime would cease.

The first shot destroyed the symmetry of my ear. The second found the fleshy part of my thigh. I leapt through a nearby window in a hail of bullets. I realized I was found flowers from the street. I landed on a rather rotund lady. She broke my fall, I broke her legs.

I rushed to my hotel and locked myself in, applied tourniquets to my leg and awaited my next speaking engagement, the following night.

This was a meeting of Women's liberation organization. Now, I had already learned from my previous talks that optimism is not the task to take. So when I got to the podium I said "Ladies, there is absolutely no way on earth that you will ever be the equal of man."

That attack left me with a sequel to the two previous I had suffered.

I was jabbed with pins, hair spray was sprayed over my entire body, I was scratched, struck with purses and shoes and was strangled with a pair of panty hose. They left me for dead.

The cleaning lady found me at 2 a.m. the next morning. When I told her what happened she struck me with her mop, then called the police, who after finding out who I was, drove me to the county line and dropped me on the roadside.

A passing motorist found me and delivered me to a hospital where the doctor recognized the multiple self-inflicted injections on me with dull, square needles, and sutured my wounds without anesthesia. Eventually, he calmed down and ordered me put to bed.

I now see (through the only good eye I have left) the error of my way.

People, collectively, are pessimistic. They need something to cry and moan about. Woe unto the optimist and well intentioned person who wishes to cheer them up by solving their problems.

I have received an invitation to speak at the convention of a major church. I shall turn it down.

Strike three!

So the latest toys the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission has found is aluminum baseball bats.

Seems the CPS figures the bats, or at least some of them, manufactured by a number of sporting goods companies might present a "substantial product hazard."

The government has taken the position the rubber grips and knobs on the handles are loose and might fly off as a little leaguer makes like Casey at the plate, with the result the bat itself could break off like a not-so-guided missile.

It's a wonder the CPS hasn't taken a look at another danger with these potential killers and require that anyone using them have the bats grounded in stormy weather.

But why wait for the thunder and lightening to start? Might as well go ahead and require groundings at all times, regardless of the weather. Who knows when it might start raining?

And if it comes to that, why stop there? The baseballs and softballs themselves are not bad and can do untold damage if a player gets beamed. Instead of requiring all players to wear helmets while they're up to bat, why not make the balls out of something a little softer, like Jello?

Then there's that hard clay on the infield...

Judge Roy Bean would've flipped and Judge Joseph Parker, sometimes known as the Hanging Judge, would roll in his grave.

The rest of us think we have it tough but the next time we complain about how bad times are, we'll just have to think those poor federal judges skinned out their existences in penury.

The integrity of it all! No wonder Judge Crater disappeared.

We can't blame those jurists who've sued the United States because they're only getting paid $42,000 a year...not counting graft.

Why, one of the poor guys said he had to quit because he couldn't afford to keep his five kids in private school. And another one had to put his wife to work selling real estate to make ends meet!

No wonder the judges felt they were being

CRACKER

CRUMBS

Sorta funny how many things changed since to different groups of people. Like for Frank Kressler and other attorneys, it was Law Day. If you happened to be in Moscow, it was good time for a parade in Red Square. And I guess that somewhere, there were some young girls dancing around a Maypole. One of these days, I'm gonna find me a Maypole and do a softshoe and see what all that's supposed to be about.

Here at the Herald, though, Saturday was just an appropriate ending for the week, what with it being Mayday, cause that was one week we needed to send out some kind of SOS for help.

Even before we could scream Mayday on Mayday we were looking around for somebody to surrender to.

Would you believe there wasn't nobody? Things just kept happening and even after I was delivering the papers...dun near a day late and good sense short, they kept happening. That's when I found out we hadn't even included the Classified Page in what was one short newspaper.

Sure glad I didn't catch all those phone calls (1) if people had gotten all their pants and (2) if they had gotten all the paper, where the heck were the classified?

By Saturday, I'd done come to the conclusion that God don't love ugly and someone had slapped me up side the head with an ugly stick.

By the way, who the heck do you give up to?

Talk about an insult, I opened up a letter Monday and found I was being checked out by the Bigfoot Research Society.

Knowing I had paddle feet, but, come on, people, there are a few feet around the Glades Bigger than mine.

All that was before I read the letter, though and found this guy is looking for some critter he calls abandoned in 1969 when they were given raises to only $40,000 instead of $50,000. Like, I said, judges "can't be expected to beggar themselves or their families for the honor of a judgeship."

Begger finds! Baldredash! How in the name of all that's holy can anyone earning $42,000 a year consider that beggaring?

Sorry, we stand corrected. Lawyers can. Maybe that's what Law Day is all about for 1976.

Maybe that's the answer to all those weird decisions that've been made by federal judges over the past several years. Anyone who figures that kind of wages means they'll have to start begging for their law's lost touch with reality.

Course one answer is for those judges to step down into private practice and let some of those hungry law school graduates tackle the jobs.

Garden Club tours gardens

The Belle Glade Garden Study Club toured Fairchild Gardens in Miami on March 12, viewing hundreds of rare tropical trees and shrubs in their spring color.

The members attending spread lunch in the park that joins the gardens. A tram car ride with a guide who knew all the plant names was next on the agenda.

Many characteristics of the flora and its requirements were made aware to the club as well as the dangers affecting many varieties of South Florida's trees from lethal yellowing.

A walk through the exotic rare plant houses brought the outing to a close.

The club held its monthly meeting on April 19 in the home of Mrs. Mimi Vinent. Mrs. Vinent presented the program on Bonsi by showing a selection of slides and a tape from Bonsi Clubs International.

Some of her own trees were exhibited with pictures showing how they looked at different stages. A potted geranium in bloom was shown by Mrs. Helen McVabe in a plant raffle.

In the round-mass flower arrangement contest, first place was won by Mrs. Edith VanLaningham, second place by Mrs. Gloria Swerdlow and third place by Mrs. Ruby Jones. Mrs. VanLaningham also won first place with a specimen exhibit of small snapdragons.

Coffee sandwiches and fruit cake were served and guests by Mrs. Vinent and co-hostess Mrs. Angelita Sanchez.

The club, according to president, chairman to Mrs. Linda St. John, has three to thank - members and their husbands for the donation of their plants, pots and time which made the club's booth a success at the Arts and Crafts Festival sponsored by the Community Mental Health Center.

The church was decorated with green palms in the choir loft; with an arrangement of spring flowers and baby's breath in the center; one candelabra arch placed above the spring arrangement and two spiral candelabras on each end of the choir loft.

Organist Helen Youngblood provided the music for the ceremony while soloist Jim Wiles sang "You'll Never Walk Alone" and "Love Story."

The bride wore a long dress with an empire waistline. The dress was champagne colored with small sleeves and finished with floral lace at the sleeves, neck and waistline. The dress was of candlelight voile and gathered at the bottom to form a large ruffle. The bride's hat was a large, wide brim with a large Tuil bow and streamers. She carries cascading spring flowers and baby's breath.

The maid of honor wore the bride's mother's blue chiffon and a bodice clasp and long bouffant sleeves and a white orchid corsage.

Karen's
Karrier

What a week!

Some friends and I got the "camping blues" recently and decided to cure it by modifying down to Fisherman Creek. We see what kind of animal life we could stir up.

We had planned on it a few days ahead of time and with a few last seconds scrambling. Friday evening, we set up our camp to Mr. and Mrs. Hay Hamilton and my little green Colt packed with supplies. An early start was voted on but due to some rainy weather and no electricity it was almost seven in the morning when I was dragged reluctantly out of bed.

Well, we finally made it to the creek a couple of hours later and then spent some time skidding and turning on those bad roads until we finally found a place to spot by the water - and we didn't even get stuck once - at least that time we didn't. I never realized there would be that many campers there that day of year. The place was packed and the best spots were taken of course.

One word of advice if you're planning on going camping anytime soon - leave early Friday evening then you'll have a chance at the really good locations. Can't say much though, we did have a pretty nice place.

After camp was set up a couple of girls took the ax and started cutting trees.

Pat Bunyan's sisters and the fisherman in the group took out her rod and reel and cast it over the water.

Meanwhile Yours Truly took out a good book and leaned back to read. The children just took it easy. It was boy heaven. How many of you have tried it lately?

Just get somewhere and take time out to watch the clouds roll by and the sun's beams dance on the water. Gettin' lost here, better stop while I'm behind.

I didn't expect Jayne to catch any fish but after a little while her line gave a tug and suddenly her rod started to bend. I got up and immediatly the camp was alive with screams and yelling - you'd think we had never seen a fish before.

Well, the fisherman pulled it in and here was a fish about two feet on the end of the line. Immediately everyone backed off - we weren't about to get tangled with those teeth.

And the fisherman "catches it" and kill it, as proved the case when "Fruit" chopped the girl's head off - we mighty blows of the ax.

Later on we decided to go riding around and see what the rest of the creek was like and we got quite a tour. I think I may know every inch of that creek by now. And we came face to face with some natural wildlife back there in the bushes such as the alligator which whipped across to read in front of us and splashed into the swamp as we frantically searched for a camera and jumped out of the truck for a better view.

By Karen
Hausberg

Lucky for us he didn't stay around for a second look, he might have decided to stay and instead went over. And then there was the black snake which had to have been about six feet long the way he was stretched across the trail - he slithered and hissed his way into the pasture brush before we could get a good look at him too.

Some of the best times of the tour were when we got stuck and then everyone had to pull up to help push while someone got to drive. If you went in the right direction you would get your hand slammed in the tailgate when it was being shut without your knowing.

But now I have a nice rescue technique for those unlucky campers who find themselves stuck in the sand in the middle of nowhere.

First dig the sand out from around the tire(s) in trouble until the back wheel stays. Then take an old pair of tennis shoes (one in front and one in back of the tire) and rock the truck back and forth until it catches hold and takes off. Always keep two or three pairs of shoes in the vehicle in case of emergency. And then if that and all else fails, yell for help. Surely there will be some neighborly campers who will lend some support if needed and have you out.

One thing about camping at the creek, you can always count on seeing some kind of wildlife, especially at night. We were awakened by a loud, crackling noise about 2:30 a.m. in the morning and before I could utter a sound one of the girl's voices quavered "Karo!"

Being the seasoned veteran I am of past camping trips, I groped for the flashlight and pointed it at the intruder, which happened to be the biggest armadillo I have ever seen. Immediately there were excited cries of "There it is! I see it! Where? Where?"

Finally I got the flashlight from the other corner some mumbled sleepily "What's going on?"

Meanwhile, the poor little dillo was so confused he kept running, but when he finally disappeared into the brush. I'm not sure but I think we also had a visitor in the form of a raccoon, but when I shone the light on him, he was somewhere up in the trees, calling at me. To think we had almost slept on the ground!

Every camping trip has to have its rain sometimes, and this was no exception. We had to give up camp early Sunday morning and it continued until about noon - but it didn't stop us. We rented a canoe and took a sightseeing tour of the water, and I cooked our breakfast and had a jolly ole time until regrettably, it was time to come home.

Can't wait to go again.

Before I run out of space, if I haven't already, there's a couple of corrections I need to make.

First of all, congratulations to the Everglades

Farm Equipment Little League boys' team coached by Wayne Miner, for becoming the undefeated champions of the Little League season. I had mentioned in last week's column that Everglades Farm had lost one game but they had not, as I was so informed ed. They wrapped up first place in the 11-12 year old division at the Bradcock 11-12 last Thursday.

Secondly, I wrote about one of the Farm League players a couple of weeks ago, referring to him as Brian Carter, but actually his name is Bruce. Bruce is the youngest - Brian plays in the Little League. Sorry, boys.

Sorry, boys.

Glades Central High head football coach Willie McDonald supervises exercises for running backs the first day of spring drills Tuesday. The

An even dozen members of the Glades Central High School girls track team earned enough points in a dozen events last week in the District 11 meet to qualify for the regional meet Friday.

Coach Jay Seider said the team came in second place at the district meet, earning 92 points to place behind Dillard, who scored 172 points. But if there was a large point spread between Dillard and Glades Central, there was another large difference in the same in third with 49 points. St. Thomas Aquinas had 46 points, Pace had 41, Cardinal Newman scored 31 points and Hallandale made no score and Jupiter failed to show up.

Seider said Glades Central won four first-place awards, two of them won by Kathleen Ford in the 100 yard dash and the 880 medley relay team won first place. The team members were Patricia Jones, Alice Ford, Linda Baldwin and Rosa Wilker.

Rosa Wilker continued her unbeaten ways by winning the 440 yard dash and the 880 medley relay team won first place. The team members were Patricia Jones, Alice Ford, Linda Baldwin and Rosa Wilker.

Linda Jones came in fourth place in the high jump and Terry Osborne came in fourth in the long jump.

Patricia Jones came in third in the 100 yard relay and Linda Baldwin was sixth place.

Glades Central's 880 relay team came in second. The team was made up of Alice Ford, Terry Osborne, Alma Rolle and Patricia Jones. Alma Rolle also won second place in the 110 yard dash.

Fishing slower

The rains which fall mainly on the plain in Spain drowns a lot of hopes this week as soggy clouds put a wet blanket on fishing in the area, according to Nan Corbin of Slim's Fish Camp.

Tom Weber of Boca Raton found a silver lining, however, as he limited out on bass with the largest going eight pounds Thursday while he was using live bait.

Postal fees hiked

Glades area residents seeking any one of several services at the Post Office in the Belle Glade, South Bay or Pahokee areas may have noticed higher fees this week.

The hiked fees were reflective of raised postal service rates all over the nation for air mail, registered mail, insurance and other special services which became effective Sunday.

This was the first time an increase has been ordered in 18 years in some cases according to a postal service spokesman.

The last time special delivery charges were raised was 1971. Certified mail fees were last increased in 1966 and special handling fees have been the same since 1957.

Yes, Mommie, they do want her in church, for in the church, they have a place for all ages. No child is too young to learn. This also provides you an opportunity to worship and give undivided attention to church services.

"Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Sugar

Fruit-in-settlement contracts continued "uncertain" to view the potential impact on sugar prices of the recent sales agreement between the Philippines and U.S. refiners, which removed some prospective purchasers as well as some surplus sugar from the market. We remain of the opinion that relatively near term demand considerations, helped by record high temperatures this month, could yet make for price firmness as refiners replace raw inventories in the wake of stepped-up offtake by soft drink and ice cream processors.

ORANGE JUICE

Based on the most recent USDA Florida orange estimate, net f.o.b. production from that state could be projected at about 180.5 million gallons (vs. 178,174,349 gallons in 1974-75). Adding foreign imports conservatively estimated at 6.5 million gallons, and subtracting cumulative movement to April 10, 1976 at 72,800,040 gallons (vs. 73,250,455 for the corresponding year-ago period), an average weekly movement of 3.46 million gallons would be necessary to close the marketing year with the same carryover as that of 11/29/75.

In view of slack seasonal consumption factor and near-perfect weather conditions, we doubt that such a movement could be attained without end-product price concessions, in themselves a depressant for futures. Accordingly, we expect F.C.O.J. futures prices to remain on the defensive.

Cotton

Futures moved sharply higher this week in response to the smaller than generally expected USDA Planting intentions report. Increased cottonplanting was also given, as a result of this report, to predictions of tightness in world cotton supplies in the new season beginning August 1. The planting intentions report of 11.4 million acres compared with trade ideas of 11.5 to 12 million. However, in view of recent improvement in weather conditions, particularly in Texas, it is thought in some trade quarters that actual plantings will exceed the planting intentions estimate and may be close to 12 million acres. On the demand side, prospects have improved recently. This season's exports now promise to total at least 3.6 million bales and could run as high as 4.0 million. Meanwhile, the domestic mill situation is looking up owing to the prospects for less competition from cloth imports. Increasing tightness in supplies is indicated, at least until early next fall when the new crop begins to move. We anticipate a further upturn in cotton futures prices.

Two sugar scientists attend ripening meet

Two local sugar cane scientists were among a group of more than 50 scientists from all over the world who attended a two-day seminar this week in Orlando on a review of chemical ripening of cane.

Dr. Joseph Orsenigo of U.S. S.E. Seventh St. in Belle Glade, represented the Florida Sugar Cane Growers League and Dr. Thomas Carpenter of South Bay Growers, Inc. also attended the seminar, which began Sunday and wound up Tuesday.

The seminar was sponsored by Monsanto Agricultural Products Co. at the Contemporary Hotel in Walt Disney World.

"The purpose of the seminar," explained Dr. W. D. Carpenter, director of product development for Monsanto, "was to exchange world performance data on the use of Monsanto's cane ripening technology, to discuss solutions to ripening problems common to specific world areas and to insure continuation of cooperative plant growth regulator research for sugar cane production."

"In bringing together recognized world authorities on sugar cane ripening," he said, "we feel the mutual exchange of ideas will have a synergistic effect on the development of chemical ripening technology. This technology is of vital importance to growers in order to maximize sucrose and sucrose levels and, consequently, increase sugar yields per acre."

Monsanto, a leading developer of plant growth technology, was the first to introduce a chemical ripener for sugar cane production. Its Polar sugar cane ripener, introduced in early 1975, has found wide acceptance for increasing sucrose yields per acre.

Copies of the proceedings also may be obtained by others interested in the papers presented by writing on company letterhead to D. A. Brown, Product Development Department of Monsanto at 800 N. Lindbergh Blvd. in St. Louis, Mo.

Tropical fruit seminar is set

A seminar on tropical fruits being grown in Palm Beach County will be held at 9 a.m. May 14 in the Glades Office Building by Gae Joyner, urban horticulturist with the Palm Beach County Cooperative Extension Service who also writes a weekly column, Goldeast Gardener, which is carried in the Herald.

"Many residents are unfamiliar with many of the 'tropical' fruits being grown in this area," Joyner said, "because they are not readily available in local nurseries. On most tropical fruits, the amount of fruit produced is not enough that they are raised for commercial purposes, expecting mangoes and avocados and so the fruits are not found in the local markets."

Joyner said the purpose of the seminar is to introduce Glades residents to the various tropical fruits which can be grown here. It will be open to four such seminars to be held in the county. Besides acquainting with the fruits, Joyner will also hand out pamphlets on the care for the plants.

When purchasing trees make sure that they have well-shaped ones and that these are free from insects or diseases. Remember too that in time most trees grow to very large size and you should choose very carefully the permanent location in your landscape that these will be placed. Do not plant close to power lines or other similar wires. It is not a good practice to plant large trees right against your home or next to driveways.

Make sure that the tree is planted properly land that organic materials such as peat moss, manure and top soil are used when planting.

"South Florida is the only place in the continental United States where truly tropical fruits can be grown outdoors," he said. "South Floridians have long been avid travelers and plant collectors and so South Florida contains a large mixture of exotic fruits brought from all over the world."
